

Mumbling Minnie

Dirty Crack
(overheard outside R.V.C.)
"I didn't know the coeds were doing rifle-practice! Just listen to those shots!"
"That's just drill, old man! A little exercise called 'knees fully bent.'"

Because when they said "And you're Mumbling Minnie!!!" they smiled.

The boys who live at the U.T.C. vociferously appealed to me—(It's a dictionary, boys, that you'll be needing. Not that psychology you've been reading!)

"Put us in your column, Min!" I will, but where can I begin? About the lad who forgot his key? And what a noise he made? Of—(Editor's note—THE REST OF THIS IS CENSORED WERE AFRAID.)

"A prom in the gym? But where can we—leave our wraps?"

Calling all Yehudis.
Ah Yehudis, optimists. Want to listen... NUTS! Saprist! What an opportunity—Auricular immunity—You want to hear? That's sweet. Just ducky... You mugs don't know when you are lucky.

Overheard at a St. Johns Ambulance Lecture.

"Don't pinch my arteries any more PLEASE! I'm Bruised All Over! Bill's going to wonder who I've been going out with!"... and we wonder a little about Bill. Not much though.

FAX!
I think the engineers are DEARS. (Especially when the snow appears. But when the snow has gone away Oh Gad! The Things I'm going to say...)

"No!" she said firmly over the telephone. "No! I won't go out with you again. No self-respecting, decent girl with any moral principles would! And anyway" she concluded lamely. "I don't think I like you."

I don't look good enough to eat... He took me out quite frequently. It really became quite a joke—In cafes and nightclubs and restaurants

He'd say firmly—"What kind of a coke?"

I showed him that verse the other day.

I realize I shouldn't have done. I now eat. Sandwiches, waffles and steaks.

But eating alone's no fun...

Signs please... It is all very well to say that women are welcome in the Union. But they ought to be told specifically where they can go. I mean in the basement for instance—yes dear—there's one you can use and one you can't. I mean the telephone booth for instance.

Personal gossip.
He calls her Bunny and she calls him Teddy. Isn't it cute? Nice coats you are wearing! Well, you didn't ask me to tell. Okay, dyke me black and call me Skunk if you like...

Are we in conference?
Elizabeth had forgotten about the first 9 o'clock conference she was scheduled to attend, but I dragged her, half-asleep, to the second. The prof called the roll, then said "Any-one else who wasn't here last time? On yes, Mr. Smith?" I nudged Elizabeth reminding her she hadn't been but I guess I disturbed a dream—and I don't know who was most surprised, prof. Mr. Smith or me, when her unmistakably feminine voice shrilled "Here sir!"

NEWMANITES HEAR YOUNG'S ADDRESS

Speaks About the Limitations of Social Activity During Wartime

The last November meeting of the Newman Club was held yesterday morning in Lady Chapel of St. Patrick's Church. Professor Eugene Forsey, who was scheduled to speak, was unable to be present.

Following breakfast, Miss Gabrielle Bourgeois, organist of the church, was heard in a Chopin Waltz, and Gordon Young, president of the Students' Society, addressed the meeting. He outlined the attitude of the Student Council with regard to the social activities of the present year, saying that the authorities felt that the war situation would become more keenly felt here, and in view of that fact, they thought that there should be a slowdown in these activities everywhere. Across Canada, he stated, such activities were being limited to the campus and this would be the procedure at McGill. Consequently the Junior Prom will be held in the Sir Arthur Currie Memorial Gymnasium. With regard to the Newman Club's annual "At Home" he concluded, that, although it must also be held in the gym or the Union, outsiders will be just as welcome as always and there need be no curtailment of any publicity desired.

Engineering Building to Be Scene of Mixed Debate

By M.E.C.

The Plumber's sanctum will echo with the patter of co-ed feet as R.V.C. descends on the Engineering Building this afternoon at 5 p.m. Today the eager world will learn whether men are vain or women or not.

R.V.C., represented by Joan Storey, B.A.2, and Margaret Currie, B.A. 1, are determined to prove that man's vanity is his most prominent characteristic. On the other hand, Bill McNaughton, Eng. 4, and Bob Carter, Eng. 2, are convinced that woman takes the prize for vanity.

Win or lose, though, the debaters will eat. The losers are to take the winners to dinner, at the expense of the sponsors of the affair, the Women's Union and the Engineering Faculty. The co-eds hope to engineer the affair so that Sadie Hawkins need not come to McGill prematurely.

Against their will and better judgment, most Artsmen side with the Engineers in this argument, although Bob Spencer, President of the Arts' Undergraduate Society, admits that his innate honesty forces him to root for R.V.C.

Bill McNaughton, interviewed by the "Daily" explained that he is something of a fatalist. He has a premonition of victory. The Engineers expect to have a one hundred per cent. support of their faculty.

Joan Storey says the co-eds feel that their argument is unbeatable. The girls are sure that the absorbing interest of co-eds in men will make them want to know all the facts about the brutes.

McGill will have a rousing debate, but the contestants hope that there is no foundation for rumors of over-ripe tomatoes, collected by enthusiastic plumbers. Time will tell! Rehearsal—Room 33, Engineering Building, 5 p.m.

GROUP SUBMITS WOMAN'S NAME

Committee Rejects Suggested Nomination of Miss Monk

League for Women's Rights Asks Representation on City Council

Word was received of the nomination of a woman to the city council which was submitted to the principal, Miss Elizabeth Monk was recommended by the League for Women's Rights to represent the university, because, they said, "Many members of the Community hoped that, as one third of McGill's students are women, one of the three councillors to be chosen by the University should be a woman."

Miss Monk, they said, is a member of the Alumnae society who is qualified in every respect, besides being bilingual and a gold medalist of McGill. She was recommended to sit on the 99-man council when it meets next month.

Miss Monk's name was submitted to the Principal, but the nominating committee, consisting of Chairman Dr. W. W. Chipman, the Chancellor, the Principal, Mr. George C. McDonald, and Mr. A. B. Wood, have decided against it. However, it is true that those who are not actually on the staff are yet eligible for nomination.

Neutrals Report Snowball Battle; Commands Issue Communiques

R.V.C., November 15.—(Delayed by Censor)

A (two words censored) clash between Arts-Commerce and Engineering forces was reported from this capital today, and informed sources said that it was the (six words censored) battle of the War. Arts-Commerce forces were said to have been severely repulsed, while Engineering Forces were reported to have retreated in rout. Both command rallied, however, and both sides sent reinforcements into a pitched battle. The superior fighting of the (one word censored) succeeded in dispersing the remains of the invader's armies.

Arts-Commerce High Command Official Communiqué, Nov. 17.

Friday, at 1150 hours the Arts Intelligence service reported an imminent attack by Engineering forces. Accordingly, at 1200 hours patrols were sent out, and reported increased enemy concentrations.

To meet the threat in this sector, reinforcements were brought up from English 2, and at 1300 hours our long range batteries commenced heavy shelling of enemy positions. The enemy made desultory reply, meanwhile manoeuvring infantry for a massed attack on the Registrar Line. However, a number of our rapid fire patrols succeeded in breaking through the lines, causing a confusing retreat of the enemy. At this point, 1330 hours, they brought flame throwers into action, but our machine gunners in rubber protection put these out of commission, and our forces then made a flanking attack and dispersed the remains of the invader's armies.

Engineering High Command Official Communiqué, Nov. 17.

A successful attack was carried out on the Arts Building Friday at noon. The enemy greatly outnumbered our forces but our excellent morale and historic fighting spirit carried us through the battle with flying colours. The Artsmen hastily retreated under our withering and deadly accurate fire to their last line of defence, the Arts Building, and barricaded themselves behind locked doors. For fear of offending neutral observers in the upper windows, (Professors and such), our forces withdrew to celebrate the immediate and decisive victory. During the celebration, the Artsmen rallied what was left of their shattered forces to make an attack on our territory but as soon as our special fire-hose division went into action and drenched the Artsmen they started to withdraw. Our forces then counter-attacked from both the main entrance and the Strength of Materials lab, and dispersed the remains of invader's armies.

TORONTO GIVES HONORARY LL.D. TO VICE REGENT

Athlone Receives Degree at Special Ceremony

INSPECTS HART HOUSE

Governor-General and Princess Alice Attend Tea After Convocation

Toronto, November 15. — (C.U.P.) — "Act as men of thought; think as men of action." His Excellency, the Earl of Athlone, Governor-General of Canada, told university students here today at a special convocation of the University of Toronto at which the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws was conferred upon him by Chancellor Sir William Mulock. The Governor-General arrived outside Convocation Hall at 2.45 p.m., accompanied by Princess Alice and members of the vice-regal suite. He inspected a special Guard of Honour drawn from the ranks of the Canadian Officers' Training Corps, and then proceeded into Convocation Hall for the ceremony.

After President H. J. Cody's presentation of His Excellency, Chancellor Sir William Mulock conferred upon him the degree of Doctor of Laws honoris causa.

Following the Convocation, The Earl of Athlone, Princess Alice and members of their suite were escorted to Hart House, undergraduate men's club of the University. After inspection of the House, the vice-regal party were present at tea in one of its common rooms, and left the university shortly before 5 p.m.

Addressing the special convocation, after having received the honorary degree from the hands of Chancellor Mulock, the Earl of Athlone said: "I fear that educated men will find much to discourage them as they look around the world today. They will deplore the extent to which the benefits of scientific progress have been largely offset by the perversion of scientific knowledge towards wasteful and destructive objectives. And yet I would ask you to believe that these conditions have come about not through any shortcomings on the part of intellectuals, but rather through (Continued on Page Four)

MAJOR FIELD MAKES BAND M.R.T.B. UNIT

Commanding Officer Will Attend Tomorrow's Band Practice and Discuss Plans

Tomorrow night Major Field, the commanding officer of the McGill Reserve Training Battalion, will be present at the rehearsal of the McGill Band. The practice will begin at 7.15 in the Union Ballroom and after it has been held, the major will talk to the members and discuss plans for the band's activities in the future. The major will arrange to take the band as a unit into the M.R.T.B. as the battalion band and outline what the band's duties and advantages will be.

Under these arrangements the McGill Band would no longer be known as such, but would be called the M.R.T.B. Band. Its function would be that of playing for the battalion's parades, route marches, and at any other times when a band would be desired.

In a statement last night, James Kerr, the bandmaster, said that he is very much encouraged at these new prospects for the band. "This is what we have been needing," he stated "to put the band on its feet. It is absolutely essential that all members come down to this rehearsal, because we need a full turnout to show Major Field exactly what we can do. McGill must have a good band. We already have the nucleus of a fine band, but we need some more players to round it out. We will be pleased to see new members and any former members who have not as yet attended this year."

Co-ed Wins Bovey Shield In Finals Of Contest As Conscription Is Debated

BIOGRAPHICAL BLANKS GIVEN

'Annual' Distributes Forms Among Seniors

Faculty Representatives to Return Completed Biographies by November 30

Biography forms for the forthcoming issue of the Annual are now being handed out to graduating students by faculty representatives. They have received instructions to see that all forms are completed and returned to the Biography Editor by the end of the month.

Warning was given by the Annual Board that students failing to fill in the poetical quotations may find one filled in for them, and that the same quotation will be used for all such incomplete biographies. These quotations, they said, need not be taken from published poetry, but may be original. In fact, they stated, originality is to be encouraged.

A slight change is being made this year in that favorite sayings and pet aversions will not be used. However, the customary summary of the subject's life is called for including date of birth, birthplace, preparatory schools degrees held, activities, positions held, activities, positions at McGill, teams played on, etc.

The 60-word limit on the length of the biography, and the necessity of a quotation are the only qualities that must be adhered to, the Annual stated, originality in all other aspects being asked for.

DR. ROSCOE TO SPEAK AT SENIOR EVENING

Dr. Muriel V. Roscoe, Warden of R.V.C. will address the Senior Social evening to be held in the R.V.C. Reading Room at 8.15 this Friday night. All co-eds in the Senior year in Arts, Science or Commerce are invited to attend.

Bridge games, games of all sorts and knitting will fill out the evening. The executive feels that the co-ed graduates should get to know each other better and it is felt that these Social evenings will allow the girls to become acquainted with each other. Refreshments will be served at the close of the meeting.

Stewart Bross Finishes Second To Margaret Currie

For the second time in three years and the second time in the history of the shield a co-ed, Margaret Currie, won the Bovey Shield. Stewart Bross came second and Joan McFarlane came third in the finals in the Bovey Shield contest which was held Friday afternoon in the Arts Building. The topic of the contest was "Resolved that Canada should adopt compulsory military training in time of peace." H. Lloyd Henderson, president of the McGill Union Debating Society, was chairman, while the judges were Professor Humphreys of the Faculty of Law, Professor George of the English Department, and Mr. Eugene Forsey of the Economics Department.

The general argument of those who supported the negative side was that training in peace time would involve large expenses in the way of salaries for the trainees, training equipment and so on. They pointed out that insofar as maintaining an army was concerned, training was unnecessary since Canadians have volunteered admirably in the present conflict. Another point in the argument was that "he who conquers by the sword will perish by the sword," citing the ancient Greeks and Romans as examples.

Those who choose the affirmative stated that we should have compulsory military training in time of peace because "If we wish for peace we must prepare for war." They chose as an example the present war in which the fall of France was due more or less to their lack of preparedness. One of the advantages of training they said was that it would result in a healthier nation since excellent physical recreation would be provided, they said.

Margaret Currie speaking on the affirmative side quoted from the Boy Scout motto "Be Prepared." She tried to prove that Canada needs preparedness in peace time and then went on to say that compulsory military training is the best form of preparedness and the best assurance of peace.

Stewart Bross also speaking on the affirmative said that a permanent result of compulsory military training would be a general high standard of health among Canadians.

In giving their decision the judges said that while Mr. Bross's speech was as good as Margaret Currie's they would award the Shield to her because of her "appeal to a touch of humour."

Colonel Bovey, donor of the shield, presented it to the co-ed.

Women in Civic Life

It has been suggested that women might find it easier to enter politics under the new administration soon to be set-up for the City of Montreal. There can be little doubt as to the ability of some women to take their places in public life alongside their husbands and brothers; there are women who are members of parliament, women who are governors of states, women who are diplomatic representatives and women who are political economists. A woman on the City Council might prove helpful in any of a number of ways. She would be rather useful to the various welfare agencies and she could use her ability for civic improvement and beautification. However, as yet there has been no report of the appointment or nomination of a woman for the post of Councillor.

McGill University has to appoint two further representatives to the new ninety-nine seat Council. The choice of a woman to represent the symbol of enlightenment and progress would not be inappropriate. Perhaps McGill should lead the way?

The University in Wartime

Now when Europe is again under a black cloud that menaces the very liberty of the human mind our thoughts go back to the unenlightened middle ages. In those dark days when freedom of the spirit was being stifled the university rose and enquired into the meaning of life and the universe, fighting the forces of reaction and ignorance.

Once again their task is clear—it is the job of the university in wartime to uphold that liberty of the mind, and to consider the form of the new world to come after this strife is ended.

The universities in Europe were among the first institutions to fall before the totalitarian onslaught, and even here subversive elements are trying to undermine the very essence of our ideals. In China, where for years the chief concern of life has been war, the people have not lost sight of what they are fighting for. The indomitable spirit of the university is emerging stronger than ever. Moving back into the interior of the land these student-warriors are developing more strength and unity than their country has known at any time in its chequered past.

In internment camps all over the world are found students whose enquiring spirit refuses to be stifled. These prison camps are housing the reconstructionists of tomorrow, the doctors, lawyers, and statesmen of the future.

The universities have always been the pioneers when the demand has been for technical knowledge and trained experts in the fields of administration, commerce, and social science. What is their immediate role to be true to their historic role? Students should be thinking about this now, for the university acts in response to the need they feel.

The task of the university is not to do less about the war, but also to look ahead.

MUSIC NOTES

SATISFYING PERFORMANCE OF BRAHMS FIRST

The First Symphony of Johannes Brahms has proven itself a long-term favorite with Montreal Orchestra audiences due to the sympathetic and understanding treatment accorded this work by Dean Douglas Clarke. Yesterday's interpretation was no exception, providing as it did, the feature of a program replete with prominent repertoire pieces including: Bach's Brandenburg Concerto No. 2, the "Carneval" Overture of Antonin Dvorak and Frederic Delius' "Walk to the Paradise Gardens."

Brahms' C Minor Symphony, though his first venture in this form, is a work of mellow maturity. When the composer sat down to write his first symphony he had behind him the two orchestral serenades and the Haydn Variations. These provided a testing ground for the Brahms idiom applied to symphonic form. The result was a towering monumental work; on a lofty intellectual plane, richly orchestrated and with thematic material of consummate beauty, complexly interwoven to a polyphonic texture that had never been achieved before.

Dean Clarke's reading was eminently successful. The men appeared well acquainted with the work and played it with savoir faire and controlled vigour.

The lavish opulence of Brahms' masterpiece was set forth sincerely, achieving a consistently splendid tone from the full orchestra.

SERENITY OF DELIUS

"The Walk from the Paradise Gardens" is a tonal sketch drawn from Delius' opera "A Village Romeo and Juliet." Inserted into the program hurriedly when soprano soloist Maria Marova failed to appear due to illness, it was given a highly creative and delicately fashioned performance of exquisite serenity.

The opening "Carneval" overture was played a little heavily and with too many frayed edges to convey the carefree jollity of this popular work.

Bach's Second Brandenburg Concert went none too happily despite some distinguished playing by Maurice Onderet, Herve Baillargeon, Real Gagnier and R. Denhez in the solo parts. The orchestral tutti lacked the glitter and the verve that characterize successful performances of these concerti.

At the next concert on December 1, Hungarian composer Bela Bartok will be heard in his own Second Piano Concerto.

RUBINSTEIN TO PLAY BRAHMS

The celebrated Polish pianist Artur Rubinstein will be the soloist at the next concert of La Societe Des Concerts Symphoniques de Montreal to be held at Plateau Hall tomorrow night. The orchestra will again be under the direction of the great Belgian conductor, Desire Defauw.

The program is as follows:

- Egmont Overture ..... Beethoven
- Concerto No. 2 for piano ..... Brahms
- La Peri ..... Dukas
- Three Episodes of Siegfried's Life ..... Wagner
- a) Forest Murmurs.
- b) The Rhine Journey
- c) Siegfried's Funeral March
- Overture to the "Meistersingers" ..... Wagner

COKE OUTSELLS BEER

In the case of the Woodward Student Co-op ("One man, one vote—All profits reinvested") coca-cola is a democratic spirit, and it outsells non-cooperative beer by four to one; for last year the thirteen student members of the co-operative group in Woodward Hall purchased over 1,000 cokes, according to George Herman '41, manager and founder of the co-op coke plan, who also revealed that during its first year of operation the non-profit organization had rung up an unexpected surplus.

Show $11 Profit

"We found after checking up the books (Herman is the bookkeeping department) that we had a profit of $11. The first thing we did was hold a meeting."

Cokes for the 13 members are purchased from the Hanover Consumer Co-op for about three and a half cents. The cases are kept in the storeroom, a window ledge in Herman's washroom, and are protected from the elements and cotton-mouthed nightwalkers by an ingenious window device. Members sign for cokes and later pay six cents for each. The surplus goes into the treasury, and is used for free crackers and occasional beer parties. At the end of the year any profits are redivided.

Herman upheld the co-op as a true democratic institution. "We have meetings pretty often, and the fellows talk on anything they want. Each member has one vote." The hottest debates (Herman presiding with an authoritarian wooden block) concern the kind of crackers the society will buy.

"I can't understand why fellows in other dorms don't do the same thing," Herman declared, stating that the co-op now has several members in off-campus houses and in other dorms. At the same time he denied any national aspirations for the coke co-ops.

"Paid by Moscow Gold"

"We're really paid by Moscow gold," he said in a confidential tone. Then with a half guilty, half receding air he added quickly: "I'm only kidding, you know; only kidding." —Dartmouth.

"Ha, Ha," sneered Abdul, "you missed me." "Yea?" replied Achmed, "shake your head!" —Manitoban.

MICHIGAN MURMURS

By W. J. R.

Ann Arbor, November 15.—Well the election is over and we could say, I told you so. Although Michigan went to Wilkie by no more than 5,000 votes, it was no more than was expected. The large industrial centres like Flint, Saginaw, Pontiac and, of course, Detroit were almost solidly Democratic, but the weight of the farm counties and the up-state mining communities threw the balance just slightly over in the other direction. It was the same story in states like Indiana, Pennsylvania, Illinois and Ohio but in those cases the labor vote had the edge. Michiganders exhibited their essential intelligence by deciding to do without the pipe-lined Governor Dickinson.

An old case whose wounds are still sore is being reopened here, or at least some people are trying to reopen it. Last June, at the Graduation exercises, Alexander Grant Ruthven, President of the University of Michigan, made the Commencement address. In it he said that there was no room in the University for people who did not believe in the workability of the ideals on which American democracy is founded. This seemed to be in reference to nothing of a concrete nature.

It was not long however before thirteen students received a letter which simply said that it was the decision of the university authorities that they would not be readmitted to the university in September. No reason was given. No charges were stated. The students were not given a chance to defend themselves and were even denied interviews when they asked for them. Basis of the university's summary action is, that to protect its ideals of scholarship and character, in every announcement issued the following appears in heavy black type: "The university reserves the right, and the student concedes to the university the right, to require the withdrawal of any student at any time for any reason deemed sufficient to it." And this statement is preceded by something to the effect that attendance at the University of Michigan is a privilege, not a right. This, therefore, was the university's justification for the way in which the matter was handled.

Of course the reason for the virtual expulsion is not as mysterious and obscure as it may seem. Everyone who goes to school here knows the reason. And it goes as follows. On Campus there are two Student Organizations: The American Student Union (A.S.U.) and the Young Communist League (Y.C.L.). To say that their political views bear to the left of centre is putting it mildly. They are recognized by the University as legal student organizations. But they are not authorized to carry on the sort of programs they have followed the past two years. Although they are student "clubs" they are wedded to the national organizations of the Socialist and Communist Parties; and hew rigidly and blindly to the party lines. They did no more and no less than the larger national organizations they represent to foster confusion.

We certainly did not approve of their activities, being disgusted and amazed at their naivete but still recognizing their danger. The university authorities, we will admit, had a difficult and delicate matter to deal with. But we think that their decision begs the question. It bespeaks frustration and bafflement. Certainly we approve in Canada of internment people of that kind. But Canada is at war. This country is not; and by summarily dismissing these students the university, we think, has struck a blow at the democratic ideal. Surely there must be some way to deal with these people without resorting to the methods of the dictators. In times of peace at least. Might not intelligent and patient education be the answer; and might not intelligent and responsible government throw the lies of the enemies of democracy back into their teeth.

Last Saturday a citizens' committee sponsored an open air Forum at which some of these students were given a hearing and the supposed charges brought against them. We went down but it was a ludicrous affair and the chances of the University reopening the question are practically nonexistent. The whole sad affair seems so misguided and confused that we hardly know what to make of it. Democratic consciousness has not yet, we fear, crystallized in this part of the United States.

Errata: Play Production features a four day run of the old thriller, "The Bat" by Avery Hopwood whose generosity makes it possible for the University to distribute $10,000 yearly to students for creative writing. . . . A Fairbanks revival will be shown Sunday of the film "Robin Hood." This is part of the Modern Museum film library. . . . Michigan lost a heartbreaker to Minnesota last Saturday. The score was 7-6 and Michigan marched all over Minnesota but forgot to march inside the ten yard line. 65,000 people soaked all afternoon as Minnesota beat Michigan for the seventh successive year; and they are the only school to win more than three times in succession. Ann Arbor was a gloomy place last Saturday night. . . . In a recent pointless debate it was resolved that women should be accorded more chivalry and for some mysterious reason the affirmative carried the day. . . . Appeasement and peace rumors started again but were rolling in the gutters with Wilkie buttons right after the election.

The Michigan Daily will celebrate its fiftieth birthday with a special edition on Saturday. . . . The celebrated Don Cossack Chorus sings here next Monday. An innovation this year is a Chamber Music Festival of three concerts which will be given by some famous quartet whose name we cannot remember either. We hope the fact that Hitler and Mussolini recently had some two hours of this type of music played at them will not mitigate against its enjoyment by people who appreciate it. . . . And tomorrow Northwestern will play football here to a full stadium; and that's the most important thing around town right now. . .

"THE RAMPARTS WE WATCH" AT THE PRINCESS.

March of Time picture released by RKO Radio Pictures. Produced and directed by Louis de Rochemont. Edited by Lothar Wolff. Story by Robert Richards and Cedric B. Worth. Narration by Westbrook Van Voorhis. Music by Louis De Francesco. Sequences from UFA's "Feuertaufe" supplied by the British Government through the Canadian Government.

Characters. Players. Dan Meredith. John Adair. Joe Kovacs. John Sommers. Mrs. Joe Kovacs. Julia Kent. Anna Kovacs. Ellen Prescott. John Slavetz. Andrew Brummer. Mrs. Slavetz. Myrtle Paseler. Prof. Gustav Bensinger.

The story concerns a spoilt girl with plenty of money—and her four-man body guard. They all go to college (Pottawatomie); the boys play football, and the girl falls in love; all very simple on the surface, but there are plenty of opportunities for hilarious situations, and mass-dancing and singing shots. Lucille Ball, as the heroine sings pleasantly—her rendition of "Near-er" being outstanding. Richard Carlson, in his loveliest role, is especially amusing, but the remaining members of the body guard really steal the show; Desi Arnaz is equally good at leading the Dream Dance and sampling lipstick; and Eddie Bracken's take off on "Near-er" didn't know what time it was, and his stories of Harvard (Harvard) are a minor riot; Hal Le Roy tap dances; Ann Miller rhumbas, and with Rodgers and Hart melodies this means tops in melodic as well as rhythmic arrangements.

"Men of the Sky" with Richard Dix is just another grade B picture about aeroplanes and designers.

"Too Many Girls" is a musical comedy in which catchy tunes share the honours with catchy lines—and the story bubbles along with inconsequential effervescence.

Final Football Fixture to Take Place on Snowy Grid

Navy and Air Force Playoff Tomorrow for Title

For all you football enthusiasts who wish to see a wide open, razzle-dazzle rugby tilt, the final classic between Air Force and Navy, scheduled for Tuesday at 4.30 p.m., will afford ample opportunity.

Both teams will wind up their preparations tonight at Molson Stadium, and despite the snow that will be on the field both coaches will be driving their players for all their worth. The task of trying to pick a winner would be a very difficult job as each team has not shown anything over the other throughout the season's play. In the two meetings of the squads during the schedule, Air Force won the first and Navy the second, while each took a pair of games from the hapless Army aggregation.

TEAMS CRIPPLED.

Injuries will keep two all-star players from taking part in the contest, one from each team. Jim Rapelle, the hard driving back of the Air Force, suffered a torn cartilage in a game a week or so ago, and the fliers will miss him sorely. Meanwhile the Navy team will have to start without Rick Read, their brilliant punter who is also out with a leg injury. However each team has come up with a strong replacement for the two cripples. Air Force have shifted Keith Scobie to a regular position on their half line, and this fellow is a handy man to have around, while the Navy team is well stocked along this line.

If the field is wet and slippery, which is more than likely, it should turn out to be a game in which the line smashers will have plenty of work, as it would be risky business to adopt an attack through the air. Murray Robinson and Jim Simpson give the Navy aggregation a formidable duo to handle the ball ground gainers through the line, while Dick Pare, Walter Johnson and MacFarlane will pack plenty of punch in the same department for the Air Force.

KICKING DUEL.

In the kicking department, the Air Force should have the advantage with their all-star kicking half Jack Kerr ready for action. Navy have lost Rick Read as we mentioned above, but Bob Stronach showed in his great game against Army a few days ago that he is no slouch when it comes to hoofing the pigskin. Then there are other fine players, especially Ward Byington of the sailors, and MacFarlane of the Air Force, who will be the field generals of the two teams.

Doug Kerr will be out, of course, to watch the manoeuvrings and strategy that coach Stu Smith will pull for the sailors, and likewise Buster Fletcher will pull for the Air Force.

SQUASHERS DRAW WITH LOCAL CLUB

McGill and M.A.A.A. Tie 4-4 in Closely-Contested Match

The McGill Squash Team was held to a draw on Friday night by a strong team from the M.A.A.A. club. Each team won three Singles matches and one Doubles. Results were:

Singles: P. Landry beat L. Pattington by 15-12, 15-15, 15-13, 10-15, 15-10.
K. Campbell beat B. Roberts by 10-15, 15-7, 15-12, 15-7.
S. Finley beat S. Ralve by 12-15, 15-2, 15-13, 17-18, 15-12.

Doubles: Aruckle and Landry beat Peterson and Pattington by 15-10, 9-15, 15-12.

Whitlaw and Campbell lost to Ralve and Pattington by 10-15, 15-9, 12-15.

Although the team as yet lacks experience it is hoped that under the first-class tuition of Ted Greene it will rank high before the end of the season.

sport... shorts by god

A football season wouldn't be a football season without it's All Star teams. It has been considered almost sacrilegious during the past few years to have a group of teams competing against each other without bringing the season to a fitting climax by picking a group of worthy stalwarts as the league's All Stars. Doug Kerr has kept within this unwritten law by choosing two of these mythical line-ups from this year's McGill Intercompany League. Kerr wishes to make it plain that there are plenty of good men not included on his lists and that he considers both teams as being of equal strength. For the sake of posterity here they are listed elsewhere on this page.

This year's grid season, being out of the 'big time' class due to the cancellation of Intercollegiate sports, has naturally aroused far less enthusiasm among the students and consequently very little is known about the players as compared with other years. But there are a good number of stellar performers just the same. Among these we might mention Air Force's Jack Kerr, Dick Pare, Johnson, Rapelle, Scobie, Marshall and Frankie Winsor; Navy's Ricky Read, Jimmie Simpson, Hall, Byington, Robinson, Bob Stronach, and Art Madill; Army's Bill Stronach, Earl Smith, Quimet, Davies, Levebre and Gerlier. Perhaps one of the reasons why the following at these games has been so poor is that the teams do not represent any group of students or Company, and nobody knows just which one they should support. Whether this is the reason or not will be seen when the Intercompany Hockey League gets under way, giving everybody a Company team to root for.

From the looks of the weather, it would seem to be a good idea to have snow shoes as part of the regular equipment for tomorrow's Air Force-Army play-off, with the outside wings wearing racing skis. In any case it will be pretty hard going in the slush, mud and snow (unless our Dodo's Almanac fails us and the weather clears up) to say nothing of the difficulty of holding on to the slippery pigskin. Fumbles played a big part in last Saturday's Loyola-West Hill match under probable similar conditions to those of tomorrow and like all late season games the team that can keep its fingers from going numb the longest has the best chance of coping top honors.

With the coming of the snow comes the announcement that the Ski Club will have its first meeting of the season this coming Wednesday. We remember last year's initial get together very well and if this one is anything like the last, it'll be well worth anybody's while to turn out. The place is the Union Ballroom and the time is eight o'clock—sharp! The emphasis this year is on a big co-ed turnout so that plans can be made to bring the R.V.C. Ski Club and the McGill Outing Club into closer union. General business will be the first (Continued on Page Four)

HOCKEY

"A" and "C" Companies resume hockey tomorrow at the Forum from 12.30 until 1.30 p.m. when all those out last week are expected and many more. There are openings for all who wish to play during the season since there will be plenty of hockey and large squads are desirable. Honorary Coaches Walter Johnson and Grant Morrison will be on hand. Now get behind your company team and we'll have an Intercollegiate brand of hockey in every company team. Ice will soon be available at the Campus too, so Company Hockey managers are requested to find out whether Interplatoon hockey is desired or second and third teams for each company. The intention is to cater to all calibres, so if you really want to play there is no reason why you cannot.

Honorary Coach Heads Training

Conflicting Lecture Hours Reduce Turn Out at Hockey Practices

Last week McGill's hockey season reopened when all six companies started their training at the Forum around the noon hour on each Tuesday, Thursday and Friday. Due to conflicting lecture hours the turnout was not very large but the Forum did not have a more convenient time available. As soon as the schedule will be completed Hay Finlay hopes to have competing two groups of four teams each, if Macdonald College and the McGill C.O.T.C. line up.

Bill Macdonald will be chief honorary coach supported by the following honorary company coaches: A company, Walter Johnson; B company, Bruce Crutchfield; C company, Grant Morrison; D company, Dick Hagen; E company, Johnny Hibbard; F company, Gordie Young. Hockey officials hope that despite the fact that the time of practice is set at a little convenient hour, more men will turn up and that full use will be made of the training facilities offered.

Doug Kerr Picks All-Stars

Doug Kerr has come out with his mythical team of 1940 and there is practically no similarity to the McGill Intercollegiate team of a year ago. New stars have arisen out of the newly formed Inter-Company loop, but they are oblivious to the outside world due to the restricted activities of the league.

Quarterback Bill Stronach of the hapless Army team stands as the only regular to be back this year, although Earl Smith, Rick Read, Frank Winsor and Art Madill were brought up from the Intermediates on several occasions. In addition to the following selections, Kerr has given honourable mention to Guy Levebre, Keith Scobie, Don Noseworthy, Gerlier, MacFarlane and a few more.

Here they are:

item on the agenda, following which, movies will be shown. These pictures usually show some top notch skiers shooting down various mountain sides with the greatest of ease and inevitably draw deep sighs from all the assembled ski fans who have visions of themselves doing somewhat the same thing in about a month from now. As a matter of fact, the season may not be that far off; yesterday we saw our first skiers over on Murray Park and like the first robins, and spring, they seemed to herald the approach of the winter season. Following the meeting which we were talking about a while back there will be a dance.

The R.C.M.P. Boxing Smoker took place as per schedule last Friday night but instead of three exhibition matches featuring McGill men there was only one, due to injuries to some of those who were to have turned out. There were six bouts in all with the Redmen leading off the card. The three two minute rounds were packed with all the punch George Lang and his opponent could put into it and the 250 assembled coppers applauded with equal enthusiasm. Bert Light refereed the bout and stated he was very pleased with the boys' display. As a souvenir of the evening R.C.M.P. badges were awarded to each of the contestants.

Lists are posted on the R.V.C. notice board and will remain up until Tuesday evening, November 18.

Please note that these are instruction classes, and quite distinct from the offerings of the Sports Clubs of the M.W.S.A.A.

our own shortcomings in not making better use of them. "All those engaged in the prosecution of the war must be men and women who can apply their intellect to the practical affairs that are before them. Just as we are mobilizing all the resources of the civilized world to defeat an enemy that is not merely our enemy but the enemy of all mankind, so we shall mobilize all our intellectual ability to enable us to make the best use of these resources.

"The art of government is no chance calling. It is just as intricate as the art of surgery, for example, and it requires just as much training. But, as a basis, it requires the services of educated men and women. We shall soon enter upon a phase in which the expression government by the people will have to give way to the expression government by the best people—best in the sense that they are judged solely by their ability to govern."

Mlle. De Miradel WILL SPEAK HERE

Former Secretary to de Gaulle Speaks on Fall of France

Mademoiselle DeMiradel, formerly confidential secretary to General De Gaulle, leader of the Free French forces, will be the next speaker in the series arranged by the Program Committee of the Women's Union. In the talk to be given early next week, Mlle. DeMiradel will speak of her experiences in France before and after the country's fall. Mlle. DeMiradel is a granddaughter of General MacMahon, famed military leader under Napoleon III.

John Lyman, contemporary author, will conduct a tour of the Contemporary Art Exhibition now being held at the Association Galleries, on Tuesday, November 26th, under the auspices of the Committee.

Among the speakers arranged by the Committee this year are Christopher Ellis, radio news commentator; Margaret Currie, Montreal "Star" Columnist; and Dean Clarke of the McGill Conservatory of Music. The Committee, of which Helene L'Esperance is chairman, is composed of the Presidents of the four years of R.V.C., and a member of the Women's Union executive.

Classical Club

The next meeting of the Classical Club will be held tomorrow in the Union Grill Room, at 8 p.m.

TUPPER SPEAKS AT S.C.M. OPEN HOUSE

Comments on the Life of Edgar and His 'Enigma Variations'

Last evening, the usual "Open House" was held in Strathcona Hall. The meeting was begun with a song. Andy Kelen introduced the speaker of the evening—Mr. R. deH. Tupper, of the Montreal Orchestra who spoke on Sir Edward Elgar's "Enigma Variations." He prefaced his comments with remarks on the life of Elgar, whom he knew personally, describing his overwhelming difficulties, his subsequent success, and the tragedy of his wife's death, following which, he produced little music, confining himself to conducting and recording music.

Elgar varied his central theme to form little pictures—those of people he knew. Originally there were sixteen of these, but he later discarded two of them. The theme is divided into three sections, the last being a return to the first. The variations are based on one section or a part of a section. The whole was supposed to form another theme, but he never revealed its identity—hence the name "Enigma." Mr. Tupper used recordings to add further interest to the address.

Refreshments were served at the close of his remarks.

The Rev. Cecil Royal was the guest speaker at the S.C.M. Chapel Service in Divinity Hall which preceded the "Open House." He spoke briefly on the contrast between Christianity and other religions.

COMMERCE TREAT SPECIALIZATION

High School Education Should Be Kept General

Last Friday, at the first debate to be held this year by the Commerce Debating Society, a debate whose purpose was to decide on the team to represent second year, D. Devlin was adjudged the winner and R. Roland the runner-up. They both upheld the affirmative of the resolution, which was: "Resolved that a high school education giving the fundamental principles of knowledge is more beneficial to the student than one who specializes in one group of subjects at the expense of the others."

Most of those speaking on the affirmative brought out the point that specialization early in life is not desirable, but that a general education is of more use to a man even later on and gives him a better chance in an eventual variation in life, with better adaptability to changes and new ways of living. They pointed out that a person's culture is certainly raised by a general education, which gives a broader understanding of life and its circumstances. They continued that it was advisable to see all the sides of life and of knowledge before deciding in what you will specialize.

The Negative

Those speaking for the negative, on the other hand, argued that one has to specialize in order to "get a job," especially if one has to be on his own at an early age. They also pointed out that one simply cannot know everything.

The judges, Dr. Beach, the director of the School of Commerce, and Mr. Vineberg, lecturer in Economics and Political Science, said that the level of discussion had been fairly high and that they were pleased with the remarkably good showing made by the three French speakers.

Next Debate

The second debate of the Commerce Society will take place on Thursday when the debating teams of the first, second, and fourth years will be decided upon. The resolution will be announced in tomorrow's Daily.

While far from an outstanding musical, there can be no questioning the entertainment value of the current attraction at the Palace. "Strike up the Band" shows Mickey Rooney and Judy Garland heading a frolicsome juvenile group who provide music with laughs in a gay musical romance.

Mickey is shown as the 'bright boy' of his high school who with the help of Judy Garland organizes a swing band among his fellow students. Tracing the story of the adventures of Jimmy Connors' Band, the climax is reached when they win a radio contract for high school orchestras staged by Paul Whiteman. The production numbers include a comical travesty on old time melodrama, an elaborate high school dance and a lavish finale built around the title song, "Strike up the Band".

The picture is not all Rooney, and Judy Garland shows to good advantage. The youngster has developed into quite a good young actress and has lost none of her ability to put across a song.

Deserving of especial mention is the scene in which Rooney imagines himself leading a swing band in Carnegie Hall and a miniature orchestra is developed in front of him made of fruit and clay.

Several excellent shorts are included in the entertaining program. —J. G.
